1. Since the Soviets have reportedly decided not to make their own railway signalling system standard throughout the Soviet Bloc, the Hungarians are continuing to manufacture their own equipment [redacted] 25X1
[redacted] They are, however, keeping up their business contacts with the Soviets in the hope that with Soviet assistance they may be able to extend their markets abroad for signalling equipment. To this end the Electroimpex engineer Dees Gabor travels abroad regularly once or twice a year, seeking markets. 25X1
2. Serious negotiations were entered into with the Poles and the Bulgarians during the summer of 1955, and during October talks were in progress with the Chinese. The Hungarian representative responsible for the latter talks is Endre Czegledi, who is expected to return from China at the end of 1955.
3. The Hungarians have further obtained consent in principle [redacted] 25X1 for the export of their signalling equipment to Yugoslavia.
